Seabird Island Community School celebrates Orange Shirt Day.

Spring salmon stuck between a rock and a hard place

Seabird Island and Stqó:ya Construction sprang into action this September when news came in that a fish-bearing stream had been obstructed by a rock slide.

Hicks Creek is home to a unique spring salmon run, as well as Chum, Coho and trout with fish spawning in various places along the creek.

The slide was originally reported by a Community Member, explained Stqó:ya Construction Manager, Tyrone McNeil. “Don Frose was working outside his home when he heard the slide come down. He later investigated and saw the slides went right across the creek in two places.”

The slides restricted water flow and damaged the landscape. The once 20-foot wide creek was reduced to only 2-feet and fish were struggling.

Using an excavator and a rock truck, crews from Stqó:ya were able to re-open the stream. However, it’s unknown what affects the slide had.

“It’s hard to say exactly how many fish were impacted, however you could see some fish struggling greatly to get by as well as some fish died in stream just below the slide. This would tell me they would have liked to go more upstream but their passage was blocked,” said Tyrone.

“It is important Seabird act on its responsibility to look after the land. This responsibility is elevated when it comes to fish. We may not access those runs but they are important to us and we need to look after them.” The area itself is prone to landslides but the cause may have been man-made. “There is geological evidence of slides going back hundreds of years.

There isn’t a lot that can be done for them as over time the creek has responded itself and fish were able to navigate by the historic slides.”

“Both slides were caused by a somewhat sloppy right of way clearing when the Interior to Lower Mainland Transition line went in. That area was to be heli-logged but they did not clean it up adequately.”

Tyrone suspects the work caused the creeks to become filled with debris which eventually built up enough force due to heavy rains that it burst and caused the slides. Stqó:ya Construction operates in partnership with Seabird Island and Jakes Construction. Through this partnership, Stqó:ya is able to execute and deliver a vast array of heavy duty civil construction projects.

Halloween safety tips

Halloween can be a fun and exciting time for the community. These safety tips for parents, children and homeowners will help keep everyone safe and happy.

For parents

- Choose face paint and makeup whenever possible instead of masks, which can obstruct a child's vision to see what's around them, including cars.
- Use allergy friendly makeup.
- Make or buy costumes in light coloured material and place strips of reflective tape on the back and front of costumes, so that drivers can better see your child.
- Have children carry glow sticks or flashlights to help them see.
- When selecting a costume, it should fit properly to prevent trips and falls.
- Dress your child for the weather. Add layers if needed.
- Children under 12 should be accompanied by an adult. Some children over 12 may be ready to go trick-or-treating with friends.
- Remove make-up before bedtime to prevent possible skin and eye irritation.

For children and Youth

- Make sure you are in a group of at least 3-people.
- Bring a flashlight, cell phone or walkie talkie.
- Discuss the route you will take and call you if you make changes.
- Set a curfew (make sure you have something to tell time).
- Do not to eat anything until they get home. Once home, ask your parents to look through your treats with you to make sure everything is okay.
- Cross the street at corners, using traffic signals and crosswalks.
- Use the sidewalk whenever possible. If there's no sidewalk, walk on the side of the road facing traffic.
- Carry a white bag or pillowcase for your candy and add some reflective tape.
- Dress for the weather.
- Don't visit houses that are not well lit. Never go inside a stranger's house!
- If you have allergies, tell the person who is giving out the treats.

Fall chores and preparing your home for winter

It's that time of year again. Things are getting a bit colder and Community Members may be turning their furnaces on for the first time since summer began. If your furnace has been off for a while, be sure to check your furnace filter and replace it if necessary. It's also a good idea to tidy up around your furnace and hot water tank. Don't forget to check your carbon monoxide detector and change the batteries. October is also a great time to take care of any outdoor chores:

- Clean your gutters (remember to use a ladder and work with a partner holding the ladder).
- Leaf cleanup (rake or mulch them up), leaves left on a lawn will kill your grass and promote the growth of mold and muddy holes.
- Cut your lawn one last time and change the oil, grease and spark plugs in your lawnmower. Lubricate the engine to prevent rust.

As we move into the winter months, plan to winterize your home and begin conserving energy.

- Roll up a towel for the bottom of doors.
- Run ceiling fans in reverse, sending the warm air up.
- Winterize or remove air conditioners.
- Install storm windows and doors or plastic your windows.
- Mind the thermostat for every degree cooler save 1-3% or $180 / year.
- Caulk or weather strip your windows. Simple leaks can sap 5-30% of energy.
- Insulate your pipes. Save your pipes from freezing and save on energy.

Envisioning a future for our children through education jurisdiction

“It was the dream our grandparents had when our parents, uncles and aunts were small - to have a school in the community teaching what we want them to know in addition to maintaining the provincial curriculum,” explained Councillor Stacy McNeil.

It’s been many years since our Elders and families sat down to envision a future for our children’s education through education jurisdiction.

Those talks abruptly ended when the previous Conservative government threatened to restrict funding dollars for education. However, new Liberal leadership have set a new tone and given new life to education jurisdiction discussions.

Those discussions have once again sparked at the Education Committee table. The Committee is eager to begin talks with the community about their vision for the education of their children and future generations of children to come.

Through education jurisdiction, the federal and provincial governments would formally recognize First Nations’ and parents’ rights to make laws related to the education of their children, explained the First Nations Education Steering Committee.

Through implementation of education jurisdiction, Seabird Island Community School would continue to teach the provincial curriculum with the added benefit of adding in more cultural pieces.

For example, children leaving during the school year to participate in cultural hunting practices, who would normally lose marks for missing classes, would have the opportunity to write a report about their experience to share with the classmates upon their return and receive marks.

Each First Nations community may take a unique approach to education jurisdiction, choosing a path that fits their community and their people.

Within the next year, Seabird will have to formally decide if we want to have control over education through a referendum.

“Staff are developing plans to start re-engaging the community and informing them of what’s going on so they’re familiar with what education jurisdiction means. That’s key to working up to a possible referendum for the community,” said Stacy.

Community Members can expect to see more information, monthly events and activities to re-open the discussion.

But there’s many steps we must go through before a referendum. The first step in moving towards education jurisdiction is participation. Think about your dreams for your children and their education. What would you like them to learn? How would you like them to learn it, from teachers or from Elders?

Envision your children’s ideal educational future and help us reach it.

We invite parents and children from the community to join us for our Cultural Feast for Minds celebration on October 18 starting at 4 p.m. at Seabird Island Community School.

The Education Committee will be hosting a night of fun cultural bingo for parents as well as cultural and language activities for children.

Door prizes and dinner provided.

We hope to see you there!
