AE Concrete – Vote June 2

AE Concrete (AEC) is requesting to extend their current 25-year lease in the Sq'ewqel Business Park to 75 years.

This will allow AEC to invest in the business, nurture the community relationship and supply long-term income to Sq'ewqel (Seabird Island). This will support Sq'ewqel programs and services that Community Members benefit from daily.

Lands-related votes can't be cast online, you must vote in-person. To pass, the mandate requires a 50% + 1 “Yes” vote.

Sq'ewqel Business Park

The Sq'ewqel Business Park was developed by Seabird's Development Corporation (SqDC) as Band Members previously voted to zone 50 acres of Seabird land for commercial and industrial use.

SqDC's primary objective is to make Seabird Island Band economically self-sufficient, which it does by sourcing lucrative opportunities. The business park will stimulate growth and stability in the community, allowing for programs, services and jobs to expand without interruption or seizure of funds.

Who is AE Concrete?

AE Concrete builds precast concrete products for public and private clients, including BC Hydro and TELUS. All stages of the process are done in-house, from making molds to finishing, curing and storage.

With limitations at their former Surrey plant, AEC envisioned a new location with a more versatile work yard, proximity to the lower mainland and access to quality trades workers. Upon connecting with Seabird's Development Corporation, AEC president Ian Graham noted that the Sq'ewqel Business Park “checked all the boxes.”

Seabird's Lands department then connected with Chief and Council to assess the viability of AEC's tenancy. The process involved environmental surveying and assurance that AEC would meet Seabird Island's land use qualifications, along with federal, provincial and structural standards.

In addition to being a business park tenant, AE Concrete provides local employment and financial contributions to community programs and infrastructure. AEC also supplies $20,000 in annual bursaries to Seabird Island High School graduates, and opportunities for Members through Seabird College and Pre-employment Support Programs (PESP).

Nearly 50% of AEC's Indigenous staff are from Seabird, and AEC aims to boost these numbers through partnerships with Seabird Employment Services and Seabird College.

Moving forward, they hope to expand their operation, build new facilities and create jobs. To integrate Members within their staff, AEC and Seabird College are developing vocational streams — specifically a condensed trades program — designed to fast-track graduates into trades positions.

AEC employs carpenters, concrete finishers, welders, mobile equipment operators, machine operators and general labourers. They occasionally hire engineers, co-op students and administrative professionals as well.

Looking Forward

SqDC's Communication Manager Carla Pratorius says leasing land for commercial and industrial use is exceptionally profitable: "Leasing 10 acres of industrial/commercial land generates as much revenue as leasing 1000 acres of agricultural land." Only 16 of 50 acres has been rented — as an anchor tenant, AEC can positively influence more businesses to rent in the Sq'ewqel Business Park.

Fully utilizing the park's capacity could significantly strengthen Seabird's financial position. Programs, services and jobs are at risk if funding is outsourced, but with steady, independent income, they can progress. In time, Seabird can accomplish self-sufficiency and flourish as a sustainable economy while supporting community initiatives, Members and future generations.

AE Concrete is proposing a lease extension from 25 to 75 years so they can make long-term investments — both within their business and Seabird Island — and Seabird will have the means to turn visions for the future to reality.

Vote YES on June 2, 2025.

Let's come together and decide the future of Seabird Island.

UPDATE: BC HOUSING REFERENDUM

Seabird Island Band Members are no longer required to vote in a BC Housing lease referendum.

BC Housing has agreed to provide Sq'ewqel (Seabird Island Band) with a forgivable loan of $21,275,860 + GST to construct affordable housing units on Pípehò:M Road. The project requires a leasehold longer than 25 years.

Seabird has negotiated a deal with BC Housing: as a self-governing nation which has consistently built and maintained homes on this land, they have agreed to provide the funding without the lease requirement.

Breakdown

- BC Housing to provide $21M loan for affordable housing to Seabird Band
- 34 units will be built, including family units and wheelchair-accessible Elders' units
- The loan will be entirely forgiven after a period of 11 years

If Seabird Housing Society ensures that rent payments cover operating costs for the units over the first 11 years they are rented, the entire $21M loan will be gradually forgiven over the next 25 years. This means Seabird won't have to repay the loan at all.

As per Seabird Members' self-expressed priorities, this housing initiative will meet needs like diversity of housing types, affordability and quality.

The building plans include a three-storey multi-family building with 1-3 bedroom units (town-houses and apartments), and 12 fully accessible 1-2 bedroom Elders' units in a separate building.

The intention is to provide much-needed, accessible homes to Seabird Community Members, reduce long wait times on the current housing waitlist, and give peace of mind to Members in need of a home now and for generations to come.

Please visit the Band Office anytime from now until June 2! On Mondays-Fridays, an information booth is set up in the lobby where Council Members, Youth, volunteers and Seabird representatives are here to answer questions about the AE Concrete referendum, provide details and assist those eligible to vote.

A VERY HOPPY EASTER

Easter Weekend brought a flurry of unpredictable weather, but smiles could be seen in every direction at Seabird's Easter Celebration.

The Events team organized a family-friendly program that attracted Members from all over the valley, from infants to Youth and Elders. It was an afternoon filled with games, good food and fun times for all.

Activities were creative and kept everyone entertained; little ones could decorate eggs and fashion unique bunny ears, and anyone could stop by the baking stations to make-and-take M&M cookies and Bannock in a bag. The photobooth was in constant rotation as we captured memories for families and friends to cherish.

Two very special guests in white were also present: Peter Rabbit and Petra Cottontale joined in the festivities, handing out treats, posing for photos, and keeping sprits high as their hops – and height! Petra dazzled everyone, towering above the tallest of us and blowing bubbles just as giant. Peter hopped around the gym, mischievously bopping unsuspecting victims on the head with his companion carrot, hip-checking photographers and handing out goodies.

We can't wait to see everyone at the next gathering, and hope the holiday weekend was enjoyed by all Seabird Community Members!

MAY MAINTENANCE: FIRESMART COMMUNITY CLEANUPS

In early May, Sq'ewqel hosted BBQs at the fire department to educate staff and Community Members about wildfires, provide mitigation tips and explain how our Emergency Preparedness department and FireSmart BC's wildfire safety program is helping to build a safer community.

Here, people could request Home Assessments, which are voluntary and completed free of charge, conducted on a first-come-first-served basis (for both owners and tenants). Home Assessment advisors survey properties top-to-bottom, identify fire hazards and make suggestions about how to address them, and improve the overall fire resiliency of the home.

Home Assessments are completed by Sq'ewqel's Local FireSmart Representative (LFR) and/or Wildfire Mitigation Specialist (WMS). The LFR and WMS ensure that wildfire protocols follow BC-wide standards, while complying with local specifications.

Changes the LFR/WMS may recommend, or assist with, include moving structures and vegetation away from homes, limbing low-hanging tree branches and clearing dry/dead brush in the "immediate zone" (5-foot perimeter around homes). Eligible properties may receive a structure to store firewood safely, based on identified fire hazards.

Did you know?

- Embers can travel on the wind for up to 2 kilometers, where they can ignite anything along their path or where they land
- Spruce and cedar, common in Seabird Island, are highly flammable
- Home Ignition Zones begin at just 0-1.5 meters from your house

Seabird's FireSmart program is developing a team of Community Members and staff to guide planning, implementation and sustainment of their efforts. Together, Sq'ewqel can begin working to safeguard the community against wildfires with a focus on the future.

Understanding hazards and wildfire habits can help you protect your home and community. Request a Home Assessment from the Sq'ewqel FireSmart program (located in the fire department, and help neighbours, friends and Elders clear their yards.

Volunteer to help with mitigation efforts!

For more information, contact the FireSmart team: 604-798-7362

We look forward to the progress being made in our community, and thank everyone for doing their part to keep Seabird Island beautiful and safe.

CELEBRATING JASON ELLIS: SQ'EWQEL'S NEW DIRECTOR OF FINANCE AND OPERATIONS

We are happy to announce that Jason Ellis has accepted the role of Director of Finance and Operations at Sq'ewqel.

Jason has been part of our Finance team for over 14 years, and has served as Acting Director of Finance and Administration since April 2024. Over the years, he has brought a steady hand, deep knowledge, and a clear commitment to supporting our programs, services, and the community.

Alongside his professional leadership, Jason is also known for his kindness, patience, and respectful approach to working with others. He leads with both heart and skill — qualities that have made him a trusted and valued member of our team.

In stepping into this new role on our Director's team, Jason continues to carry the values of accountability, trust, and community that guide and ground our work. Jason will provide leadership to the Finance, Information Technology, Records, Privacy, Human Resources, Purchasing, Proposals, and Administration Operations teams. These important areas support the administrative operations of Sq'ewqel.

We are grateful for Jason's continued journey with us. Please join us in congratulating him as he begins this next chapter with us.

With appreciation,
Sq'ewqel Administration

CLEAN-UP AREA: PHASE ONE

Ey Swaye Sq'ewqel,

Public Works Staff and Community Members have been working to clear the blackberries around Sq'ewqel.

In an effort to complement the work completed and add to the beauty of our community we will coordinate Students, Staff, Volunteers, Elders, Housing, Public Works and the Emergency Services Department to clean-up the area.

We are looking for volunteers to pick up non-vegetative debris now until through May 22, 2025.

Nitrile gloves, commercial bags, rakes, reacher tools and wagons will be provided.

A bin is placed near the site for larger items and bags to be hauled away.

Thank you for your support in making a visible difference in our community!

Kw's hoy (thank you)
Sq'ewqel Cleaning Team

THANK YOU FOR SUPPORTING OUR COMMUNITY!

A heartfelt thank you to our Students, Elders, and Volunteers who joined us on April 22 at the Fire Department for a BBQ and community clean-up! Together, we focused on the Maria Slough, forest park, and the treed area behind the school – your effort made a visible difference.

We've identified key areas of focus and are proud to include Elders who have signed up for a FireSmart Home Assessment. These Elders have expressed a desire to support – and be supported by – their community. We're honored to help them complete important tasks in their yards.

Please refer to the graphic of Community Phase one above. Additional aerial maps will be available on-site when cleanup supplies are distributed.

See you there!

VIOLENCE

In the aftermath of recent events, it's important that we come together to confront violence and aggression posing risks to our families and neighbours.

Sq'éwqel strives to be a safe, welcoming place for everyone who lives here. When incidents of violence happen, we threaten the security vital to the wellbeing of our families, Youth, Elders, and all other valued Community Members.

Indigenous women, children and communities are more vulnerable to violence, but sadly much of this violence starts right at home.

An influx of weapons coming into Seabird, violence against partners and violence against family members are significant concerns. To those feeling frustrated, or seeking support: reach out to the Band Office. There is a vast expanse of resources offered at Seabird, and these can help you manage before enacting aggression or violence on those around you.

All Community Members are valuable. To act out in violence towards others is a grave act of misconduct that has no place in our community.

To move forward and continue along the road of empowering each other, we must hold ourselves accountable for the harm we cause others. These actions hurt everyone around us; loved ones, those who are witness, and the community.

If you are concerned about a family, friend, community member, or you have witnessed or experienced violence, call 911 immediately and later, the Band Office for resources. Don't navigate this alone; we are here to support and uplift you.

MOCK COMMUNITY EVACUATION - THANK YOU

A big thank you to Kent-Harrison Search and Rescue for joining Seabird Island's Fire Department in conducting an evacuation drill on April 23. Roughly 20 first responders showed up at Seabird Island's fire department where they received a quick briefing before splitting into 4 teams. Each team covered a zone, and in only 1.5 hours they were able to deliver a mock evacuation alert to over three quarters of the homes in the community. This is a great indication of how long it will take to notify everyone in a real event. The information they gathered will help Seabird Island prepare for future large-scale emergencies.

Think 2 hours is too long to get notified in a real event? To speed up emergency notifications, please download Alertable and choose Seabird Island as your location. Email Seabird Island's Emergency Preparedness Manager, Danika Snook, if you would like assistance registering for Alertable: danika.snook@seabirdisland.ca

STAFF ANNOUNCEMENT: ANASTASIA'S TRANSITION TO DIVISION MANAGER OF EMPLOYMENT, TRAINING, AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT

We are pleased to share that Anastasia Sillick, our current Student Engagement Coordinator, will be transitioning into the role of Division Manager of Employment, Training, and Social Development.

Since joining Sq'ewqel, Anastasia has brought a thoughtful community-focused approach to her work. She quickly demonstrated her passion and deep experience in employment and training, drawing from more than 10 years of supporting youth and adults with career and education planning. Her background includes roles as a Career Advisor, Job Developer, and Coach across Non-Profit Youth Employment Centres, WorkBC Services, and Workforce Development Training programs.

In her new role, Anastasia will oversee programs that connect Community Members with meaningful employment, education, and skill-building opportunities. She will lead initiatives focused on pre-employment training, income assistance, and employment support, always guided by our values of cultural safety, respect and empowerment.

Please join us in congratulating Anastasia on this well-deserved transition.

HISTORY: HOW SEABIRD ISLAND GOT ITS NAME

Traditional lands, like those within the Stó:lō territory, have always been a hotbed for travellers looking to stake their claims or strike it rich.

The Fraser Canyon Gold Rush began in 1858, when hefty gold nuggets were found along the Thompson River. This discovery led to the influx of thousands of prospectors arriving in Hope up to just north of Lillooet. It also marked the dawn of the newest British colony: British Columbia.

The long-time residents of the land were not necessarily interested in these events, or they were prevented from fully participating. Tensions were high as “pioneers” poured in and disrupted established systems of trade and land agreements. These pioneers were American, European, British, Eastern Canadian, Chinese, Maritimers, and even included some Hawaiians, Mexicans, West Indians and free Black Americans.

A culturally colourful tapestry united by one colour in particular: gold, sworn to be glimmering throughout the Fraser Canyon’s rugged landscapes. The dream of finding fortune in the soil or a bend in the river drew people to Canada’s ancestral territories more than once, explaining why many existing towns were originally established, and how they were named.

The SS Sea Bird was a steamboat ferrying a load of eager passengers to the riverbanks of the Fraser Canyon. On a journey to Hope in 1858, the Sea Bird made a wrong turn and was briefly grounded on the shallow bed of the Maria Slough.

Excluding the cook, passengers narrowly escaped the hostility of the Indigenous bands living there, who were all too used to boatloads of newcomers arriving and disrupting their way of life.

Although the boat eventually reached the shores of Victoria, the name “Sea bird” never left the land just beyond the Maria Slough. The Stó:lō territory was christened “Seabird Island,” but the traditional name, Sq’ewqel (“turn in the river”), more accurately describes the location, and more authentically represents the people of the community.

In its life, the SS Sea Bird travelled from New York to San Francisco, up to the Fraser Canyon where it sailed passengers between Victoria and Hope. An interesting timepiece in Canada’s foundations and history, the name “Seabird” is infused into the story of this land, but residents of present-day Seabird Island will forever be traced back to this land’s beginnings.

You don’t need to stake a claim where you already belong. The Sea Bird and its passengers cruised the Fraser River end-to-end, hoping to cash out on the riches laying beneath the earth. Whether or not they found what they were looking for, whether they stayed or left, Sq’ewqel remains.

Today, the people of this community focus on prosperity and longevity through stewardship, as they always have. The legacy of the dreamers, hailing from lands near and far to ransack the earth for riches, lives on as tales from the past.

RED DRESS WALK – MONDAY MAY 5

Monday, May 5 was a sunny, warm day. Inside the Seabird Island gym, Community Members, staff, school students and families came together to honour Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls (MMIWG) across Turtle Island.

Seabird high school students opened with a drumming ceremony, followed by a greeting from Chief Harris. He imparted the notable reminder that women and girls are not only missing and murdered, but they also experience a disproportionate amount of abuse.

Sq'ewqel Band Member Gail Starr spoke next, remembering her experience in the RCMP. During her career, she worked among Indigenous communities spanning Northern BC, and closer to home in Chilliwack. Gail worked cases locating missing women and girls, with residential school survivors, and helped people living on the streets contact their families. One lesson that constantly came up throughout her work is the importance of connection to family and culture.

Gail observed how maintaining a close connection to one's roots can go a long way in grounding them to safety and security; it's not natural or healthy to walk through life alone. Even if your journey takes you down some solitary roads, no matter how much time has passed or how much distance there is between you and your loved ones, staying linked — even in the smallest ways — holds untold benefits.

Keeping close ties with each other is essential, but Gail also stressed the importance of preparing our girls to recognize and reject abuse early. Empowered girls are on the path to becoming empowered women, and the fundamental ideas we have of how we should be treated shapes our lives.

“Don’t ever be comfortable being disrespected; not by family members, partners, no one,” Gail said, directly addressing the women and girls in the room.

The Red Dress Walk was the first of its kind in Agassiz. Buses dropped Seabird Community Members off at the Agricultural Hall, and from there Pioneer Road was closed to traffic up to the junction at Highway 9. RCMP vehicles flanked both ends of the procession, and the tail was brought up by Sq'ewqel's fire truck.

Community Members comprising Sq'ewqel students, Elders, parents and families as well as staff and visitors congregated outside the hall. Chilliwack Métis women were propping up a large hand-painted banner depicting Indigenous women seated on a bus, enjoying safe passage through the notorious Highway of Tears in Northern BC. Soon, students and administration from Agassiz High School joined the growing crowd. Once everyone was present, a moment of silence was held for the MMIWG, and the march began.

A mass of red flooded the street heading through town, guided by empty red dresses hanging from fences, street posts and awnings. Seabird provided red T-shirts, but many wore their own red dresses, shirts, shorts, hats and socks. Some marched in regalia and red handprints splashed across their faces, or raised handmade signs as they walked.

The drummers led the throng of children and teachers, Youth and Elders, and men and women from different cultures and generations who came together to show solidarity for the lost sisters of Turtle Island.

The drumming continued as the procession reached the end of the walk, where children and adults joined the circle in dance. Alain Marchand, a Seabird driver, addressed the crowd.

"This is what we do in times of hardship; we gather," he said. "If we want this violence to stop for all women, not just First Nations women, we need to come together." Alain expressed gratitude to the marchers, and emphasized how the blending of communities in the face of injustice is a powerful demonstration of unity. Violence against women and girls is a pervasive, cross-cultural issue, and we must stand together to protect everyone we hold dear, despite our differences.

Harmonious coexistence is achieved when we lift each other up and embrace the differences that make us who we are. Together we are stronger, no matter what sets us apart.

In the early days of Gail's career, it was less common for Indigenous populations to rally around reconciliation. Many who spoke about injustices were ignored, while victims, survivors and family members stayed silent because talking about these experiences was too difficult or stigmatizing.

Recounting trauma is painful, but it can be a useful tool. Once people realize they're not alone, it's easier to admit that they deserve better and should demand it. People mobilize, transforming common struggles into common goals. Connection carries us through and paves a path forward; as Gail said, "Sharing our stories is our strength."

The culture is shifting positively as Indigenous voices grow louder. Those impacted by violence levelled against their communities are fighting back and reclaiming their power. "It makes all the difference, and sends a strong message to non-Indigenous people," said Gail.

The message is clear: Indigenous women and girls are sacred, and their losses are felt and mourned for generations. To the Canadian public, it's a call to action, the demand to recognize and challenge this crisis. To Indigenous women and girls, it conveys that they are irreplaceable and are infinitely valued by their loved ones, communities and wider society.

The natural flow in family and community is ruptured when girls and women are taken from us, and the violence spreads pain to everyone in its path. Connection to our loved ones and the different groups that make up our society can begin to heal this pain. This extends into our interpersonal relationships with men, women, partners, friends, family members, neighbours and peers, across cultures and communities. This way, connection solidifies into unity.

Unity is the key. But so is responsibility.

"The world needs to change how they treat people," Chief Harris said in the Seabird gym. "Especially women."

NATIONS CREATIONS OPEN HOUSE

Earlier this month, Sq'ewqel-owned business Nations Creations hosted an intimate open house, inviting Seabird Members and staff to tour their newly renovated premises on Pioneer Ave in Agassiz.

Nations Creations

Nations Creations is a promotional company that services businesses and artists with a focus on First Nations, particularly Sq'ewqel. Staff work together to enhance a brand, achieving harmony between art and marketability. Using a given artwork or logo, they curate a desired product, making each stroke of art meaningful while preserving integrity, expanding the brand's potential and ensuring cost effectiveness.

SqDC

Nations Creations is part of a larger growth initiative headed by Sq'ewqel's Development Corporation (SqDC) to bolster independent income. It was acquired in 2022 and prioritizes Seabird Island as a client while continually pumping income back into the band.

Renovations at Pioneer Ave

Renovations began in December 2024 and recently wrapped up, and the months of hard work have paid off immensely. The space has opened up and become more accommodating while promoting a healthier, more efficient workspace. The capacity for operations has also increased, allowing for more product options, quicker turnaround periods, availability for more distributors, and ultimately the potential to boost revenue.

The Tour

At the open house, guests were greeted with a smile and swag bag as soon as we walked through the doors. The foyer was laid out with displays from some of Nations Creations' preferred suppliers showcasing their products.

Before beginning a tour of the new facility, guests met General Manager Ruby Johnston. Ruby warmly welcomed us before giving us some treats for our bags and a voucher for a free lunch. Then we walked through each room, learning about the machinery and breadth of their manufacturing capabilities. We saw some examples of available products and services, collected more swag and checked out the gift shop.

Afterwards we browsed suppliers' stands and cashed in food vouchers at J&R Bannock Wagon. Bannock burgers and Indian Tacos cooked in the truck as Seabird staff and Community Members chatted and ate.

The low-key open house was delivered exclusively to Seabird Members and staff. Ruby wanted to celebrate the building with the community and hopes to do so again once more accessibility features are added.

As Nations continues to grow, Ruby also wants to build its Seabird population on staff.

Soon, merchandise crafted by Nations Creations will be available for purchase at the 2025 Seabird Island Festival. Look out for them on May 24 and 25, and be sure to grab yourself something unique and artistic to show off your Seabird pride.

This is the best part of the job, according to Ruby. Seeing Community Members wear Nations Creations gear is a full-circle celebration that illustrates Seabird pride and Nations Creations' thoughtful representation of our brand. "Thank you for the opportunity," Ruby replied, when asked if there's anything she'd like to say regarding Nations Creations' services to Seabird Community Members.

SUNRISE EXPANSION PROGRAM: NOTICE TO ALL SEABIRD COMMUNITY MEMBERS AND STAFF

Throughout May and June, the Sunrise Expansion Program (SEP) will be conducting Geotechnical & Groundwater Monitoring Field Exploration. This is to assess on-reserve feasibility and prepare 3 reports on the critical baseline data required for this project.

Along the 6.8km pipeline route through Sq'ewqel, 6 geotechnical boreholes will be drilled to collect and test soil samples, and an additional 7 boreholes will be drilled to install groundwater monitoring wells.

Borehole drilling will be conducted using a sonic drill rig to ensure soil samples can be collected and sent to a laboratory for testing and identification. This testing is intended to develop the baseline geotechnical data required to inform technical planning discussions as well as inform future assessments. Installation of groundwater monitoring wells are essential for any water management and risk mitigation activities and considerations made by Seabird Island's technical planning team.

There will be a notable presence of equipment, machinery and field crews on-reserve during this time. To maintain the safety and effectiveness of field crews, biologists, Seabird consultants and staff, it's crucial that work areas are left undisturbed.

The Seabird Island SEP Technical Team appreciates Members and staff for their continued recognition and support of the many moving parts of this story.

For more information regarding the SEP project, please visit enbridge.com/projects-and-infrastructure/projects/sunrise-expansion-program

FINDING EULACHON TOGETHER

On Friday April 25, Jillian Stewart (Biologist), Amy Vander Wyk (Junior Biologist) and Nicole Kaminski (Junior Biologist) joined Georgia Westerveld of the Lower Fraser Fisheries Alliance (LFFA) for a Eulachon Assessment Survey (EAS) on the Fraser River, just downstream of the Patullo Bridge in Delta, BC. By observing and participating in this survey, Seabird's Fish & Wildlife staff gained hands-on experience on the water and learned about a species of fish with important cultural history for First Nations.

These surveys are conducted from the same location every second day at low tide. With low tide times fluctuating, the numbers of eulachon caught in the nets fluctuated based on their distribution at the time of the surveys. This year, the surveys started on March 10 and will run for approximately two months. Each survey is a 15-minute drift from the same spot in the Fraser River using a gill net. Eulachon are retained in an aerated bucket when they are removed from the net, and are handled carefully to determine their sex, level of maturity, and presence of teeth on upper and lower jaws.

On our field day, we caught 32 eulachon and only two of those were fatalities; the rest were returned to the river to continue their spawning. Seabird's staff will continue to engage with the LFFA on this project and other relevant work. We are grateful to Georgia of the LFFA for this learning opportunity, and we will continue to seek out other opportunities to enhance our work as biologists!

OVERVIEW OF INDIGENOUS JUSTICE CENTRES SERVICES

Indigenous Justice Centres (IJC) provide culturally appropriate information, advice, support and representation directly to Indigenous people at the community level. There are currently fifteen IJCs and one Virtual IJC in the province. We know access to justice for our people demands more than 15 brick and mortar IJCs, and we are actively advocating for solutions to address this.

IJCs reflect a partnership between the BC First Nations Justice Council and local First Nations leadership. While focused primarily on criminal law and child protection issues (priorities set by First Nations leaders in BC), they also offer additional services based on community and cultural needs.

Justice issues do not exist in isolation but are linked to social and health determinants. Knowing this, IJCs take a holistic approach to client and community wellness by facilitating client connections to supports such as housing, mental health and addictions treatment, and employment services.

Stated another way, the IJCs provide support both to individuals, in their interactions with the justice system, and to communities seeking to expand and improve their justice infrastructure.

INDIGENOUS JUSTICE CENTRE OBJECTIVES

Incorporating the priorities determined by community experts, the general objectives for the IJCs identified by the BC First Nations Justice Council (BCFNJC) are as follows:

Keep Indigenous people safe by reducing incarceration.

- Facilitation of Gladue reports to support accused;
- Promoting and facilitating expanded community support for accused at trial;
- Seeking greater use of restorative justice in sentencing; and
- Seeking reduction in numbers of sentencing/release conditions which unnecessarily increase the likelihood of re-incarceration on breach.

Divert Indigenous people to a healthy path away from justice involvement.

- Promoting diversion as a “first option” at all levels of the criminal justice process;
- Promoting better transitions from jail and reintegration into community; and
- Referrals to health / treatment services, victim services, or other supportive programming.

Make the justice system experience more Indigenous.

- Provision of a safe cultural space for Indigenous service providers to assist clients
- Supporting community efforts to implement or expand traditional Indigenous justice forms and seek self-determination in justice matters

Make it easier for Indigenous people to navigate justice and obtain support.

- Legal representation and/or legal referrals in child welfare and criminal cases
- Elder and community support at court and other forums
- Outreach on access to justice and legal literacy regarding child welfare processes and criminal law
- Functioning as a focal/referral point for Indigenous-serving organizations

Our Core Principles

Connection & Belonging
We want everyone to feel like they belong. At Voices of the Future, you will be part of a team where people care about each other. You will build friendships, feel included, and know that you matter.

Growth & Empowerment
We help youth grow by teaching life skills, healthy habits, and doing fun, creative activities. You will learn how to feel confident, try new things, solve problems, and be a leader.

Culture & Community
We celebrate Stó:lō culture and traditions, including the Halq'eméylem language. This helps you feel proud of who you are and connected to your community.

SAGE SUGGESTIONS

A COLUMN FOR CLEANSING, CLARIFYING, ENLIGHTENING AND SOOTHING FUN.

SAGE SUGGESTIONS: DEALING WITH MOSQUITOES

Beat the Buzz

Mosquitoes are on their way into our yards and homes, bringing with them the promise of annoying us as much as possible this warm season.

Read on for tips and tricks to keep them as far away as you can!

Keep it trim

Mosquitoes thrive in ungroomed environments. Swamps with lots of brush and overgrowth, little movement, still air...that's the pest's paradise.

Be a hostile host; keep your lawn cut, as well as bushes, shrubs and plants trimmed. This neatness will discourage mosquitoes, and they'll buzz off past your gates to find a better place more suited to their needs.

Keep it moving

Stagnant water is the hotbed – literally – for mosquito population growth. Mosquitoes breed and lay eggs on still water, and they're creative about it, too.

Drain anything holding water – pools, cups and other dishes left outside, pots, watering cans, clogged gutters...even things like bottle caps, shovels and puddles will entice mosquitoes.

If there are things you use that hold still water (kiddie pools, birdbaths, watering cans), drain and refill them periodically. You can cover them when not in use; if you have a pool, cover it each evening.

Inside, keep planter saucers, counter-tops, dish drying racks, vases, pet's water bowls, clogged drains and leaky faucets dry.

Keep them out

Consider placing natural mosquito-repelling plants inside your home. Citronella, lavender, basil and marigold will look serene while keeping the critters out.

Fans are your friends. Mosquitoes suck (ha) at flying, so fans placed inside and outside will keep them at bay, and the circulating air will maintain an inhospitable environment.

Keep trying!

If they've managed to breach your defenses, trap mosquitoes in a few easy steps.

In a shallow dish, mix equal parts apple cider vinegar and water. Add 1-2 teaspoons of sugar, and then stir in 3 drops of dish soap. Place the trap near windows and doors, and refresh the solution every 2-3 days.

Sadly, mosquitoes will find ways to get to you, as is their nature. Allow larger insects and predators to do their jobs, get a fly swatter, and try some of these tips to minimize their annoying impacts.

Happy swatting!

Drug Alert

HOPE

Beige powder sold as Fentanyl tested positive for high concentrations of a new synthetic cannabinoid (called AB-MDMSBA) in combination with a fentanyl analogue (para-Fluorofentanyl) and a long-acting benzodiazepine (desalkylgidazepam).

Posted: May 07, 2025
Please remove by: May 20, 2025

AB-MDMSBA is structurally like other synthetic cannabinoids, but very little is known about its specific effects. Synthetic cannabinoids can have some similar effects to cannabis. In general, synthetic cannabinoids are less safe than cannabis. They have been associated with deaths due to both toxicity and user behaviour while experiencing the effects.

Friends, family, and community members using unregulated substances may face increased harms of unknowingly taking a different substance than intended.

Tips for safer drug use:

- Explore with service providers options for witnessing consumption (episodic OPS) and local Overdose Prevention Sites
- Stagger use with friends so someone can respond if needed
- If using alone let someone know and ask them to check on you
 - Download the Lifeguard or BeSafe app
 - Call the National Overdose Response Service: 1-888-688-6677 if no cell data
- Take a small amount, wait and see how it feels
- Mixing substances increases risk of overdose. This includes alcohol and prescription drugs
- Find local harm reduction services www.towardtheheart.com/site-finder
- Get your drugs checked www.fraserhealth.ca/drugchecking or www.getyourdrugtested.com
- Carry Naloxone. Visit www.naloxonetraing.com for a training refresher
- Text 'JOIN' to 253787 to receive text alerts

Please look out for each other.
